SPEECH

To both Houses of PARLIAMENT.

On Munday the Third Day of April, 1704.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Cannot put an End to this Session, without Returning you Thanks for the Willingness which you have all Expressed to Support and Assist Me in Continuing the present War.

And I must Thank you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, very particularly for the great Forwardness and Zeal which you have Shewn, both in the Early Dispatch of the Supplies, and in making them so Effectual for Carrying on the Publick Expence, without any Additional Burthens upon the Coun-treys; it shall be My Care to Improve This to the best Advantage.

My

My Lords and Gentlemen,

At the Opening of this Session I did earnestly Express My Desires of Seeing you in Perfect Unity among your selves, as the most Effectual Means imaginable to Disappoint the Ambition of Our Enemies, and Reduce them to an Honourable and Lasting Peace; and tho' this has not met with all that Success which I Wisht and Expected, yet being fully Convinc'd, That nothing is so necessary to Our Common Welfare, I am not Discouraged from Persisting in the same Earnest Desires, that you would go down into your several Countreys, so Disposed to Moderation and Unity as becomes all those who are Joyned together in the same Religion and Interest.

This I am perswaded will soon make you sensible, That nothing, next to the Blessing of God, can so much Contribute to Our Success Abroad, and to Our Safety at Home.

And then the Lord Keeper by Her Majesties Command, said,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IT is Her Majesties Royal Will and Pleasure, That this Parliament should be Prorogued to Tuesday the Fourth Day of July next; And this Parliament is accordingly Prorogued to Tuesday the Fourth Day of July next.
